

Latin American Master's and Doctoral Thesis Competition – CLEI 2026

Within the framework of the 52nd Latin American Conference on Informatics (CLEI 2026), authors of Master's and Doctoral theses in Computer Science and Informatics are invited to submit their work to the following competitions, as appropriate:

- Latin American Master's Thesis Competition (CLTM)
- Latin American Doctoral Thesis Competition (CLTD)

The three best theses will be awarded, based on the evaluation of the Program Committee and the Chairs of the CLTM or CLTD competitions, as appropriate.

Important Dates

- Submission deadline: ~~April 30, 2026~~ May 17, 2026
- Notification of acceptance: ~~June 11, 2026~~ June 25, 2026
- On-site presentations: During CLEI 2026, September 7–11, in Mexico City

Eligibility Requirements

Applicants must have defended and successfully completed their Master's or Doctoral Thesis in Computer Science or Informatics between April 1, 2025, and March 31, 2026 (strict period).

The Master's or Doctoral program must be offered by a Latin American or Caribbean University that is a CLEI member.

Submissions must be individual works (no group theses).

Evaluation Criteria

Submissions will be evaluated by an Evaluation Committee according to:

- The quality and relevance of the research
- The appropriateness of the chosen methodology
- The originality of the contributions
- Publications in international conferences and high-ranking journals demonstrating impact in the field
- Patents demonstrating innovation relevance

The committee will select three finalist theses for awards.

Required Submission Materials (PDF format)

Each application must include the following documents:

- 1. Extended Abstract
